INTRODUCTION

Has been prepared and summerised based on the trational astrology method

3rd Bhava and information technology field

Information Technology is a mode or means to express our opinions/thoughts to others in a letter understanding. It is one methodology of communicating to others. In nutshell it is termed as mutual exchange of ideas.

In this modern era info technology has undergone radical changes to reach a peak in communication. Ancient ages men began to develop a desire to gain communicative skills. That initial stage gradually gained prosperity on reaching this present state. But for this a man could not have initiated a satellite and made an endeavor to creep into space.

Once upon a time people expressed their views to others by sending messages tied to the feet of pigeons/ doves travelling a long distance. Then came a stage to send human messengers on horses, even the poets did this work. Avvai poetess went as a messenger to Athiyaman once, as we read from history. Old stone age people informed the entry of enemies or unknown people by the sounds made by birds, by their instinct. If a crow builds a nest in the holes of trees, it means rains are likely to pour upon, when builds on the outer edge of trees, it means sunny days are on.

Lord Krishna was invited to marry Rukmani when she expressed her desire by the scripts written on the feathers of peacock. Info technical device makes a link between the two ends in the beginning by symbols and their codes.

A few informations were carved in stones to maintain indestructive messages over ages. The dynasties of Kings (how they ruled) are all found in stone carvings. Sculptures were carved with the ideas to make the people in subsequent ages understand their history. They all were monuments to be viewed and comprehended. By hearing sounds of drums people visualized them as war sound or victorious sound or danger zones.

Dramas enacted by people were aimed at communicating or spreading news to them. Drum sounds denote either joyful moments or sorrowful events.

Veerapandiyakattapomman had a practice of eating after his worship in the temple of Murugan at Tiruchendur. For this purpose he made alarming bells during all his ways of visit.

Later loud speaker and public address system came to the aid of people in expressing their notions and propaganda. "Events of today are the news of tomorrow". In olden days there were no means to give out a social awakening among people to make them understand.

Electricity invented by Benjamin Franklin paved a new path to begin information technological skills.

Through transportation in the form of motor cars, trains and moving vehicles communication was sent. Later Radio by Marconi became a vital device to bring about revolution in communication. Radio became a normal use of the people everywhere. Then emerged a Computer (big or small). Not used to carry it everywhere, laptop and cell phone became more prominent.

Importance of Cell Phones

Following the foot path of turtles ancient Kings found out the islands. Recently police personnel trace out the culprits by cell phones and their tower signals. For this purpose the police department has configured a website. Cell phones master mind all works like watering the garden though motors, manuring the plants and looking after the crops.

To avoid wasting of time cell phones greatly help to communicate messages through various kinds of apps. Just to convene a meeting through cell phone ansms is sent through out. Studying abroad or under taking jobs has become very easy and accessible by means of cell phones.

Creativity, mental ability, expansion of thoughts, human approaches etc, all these have stepped out once cell phones began a device among commuters.

We witnessed/sighted animals and birds in reality but in days to come it has become a rarity even to see a butterfly in nature. Every individual has a cell phone. Discrepancy between a wife and husband has started because of cell phones. Lot of divorce cases knock at the doors of court.

By keeping cell phones close to our bodies spread diseases due to atomic rays, electromagnetic waves and ultra sonic sounds. Misuse of cell phones on the roads while walking or driving vehicles have created a lot of accidents thrashing people to death.

Apart from God's creation of nature, men begin to use scientific devices, which possess merits and demerits. God created everything with proper reason but mankind did/ does everything to his prime benefit only.

Man's landing on Moon becomes possible only through science advancement and satellite technology.
